Where Do Animals Go In Winter?

Susan White

Do you ever wonder where animals go in winter?

Birds fly south.

Bears sleep in caves.

Snakes stay in their nests underground.

Salamanders hide under leaves on the ground.

Squirrels take cover in hollow trees.

Rabbits snuggle in their burrows.

Frogs bury themselves in mud.

Chipmunks nest in trees.

Raccoons tuck away in logs.

Weasels camouflage themselves.

A photograph of two turtles, likely box turtles, resting under a large, weathered log. The turtles are dark brown with distinct patterns on their shells. The log has a rough, textured surface with some moss or lichen. The background is a plain, light-colored wall.

Turtles ditch under logs.

Where do you like to go in winter?
